

Clemence Blouet, Ph.D. is a MRC Investigator at the MRC Metabolic Disease Unit in Cambridge, UK. Her work focuses on the characterisation of brain nutrient sensing circuits relevant to the control of energy balance and appetite.

Her talk will focus on the identification and characterisation of novel nutrient sensing pathways involved in the detection of dietary proteins.